

Finding the Fun at Lincoln Fair

BY IRENE POWERS

● WEEK-END swingers, from toddler size up, can find where the action is between noon and nightfall, today and tomorrow in the 2000 block of Mohawk street and neighboring Dickens square.

Lined up for the Lincoln Central association's 6th street fair are such attractions as an exhibit and sale pitched to the sophisticated Sandburg Village players will appear at the fair at 2:30 o'clock to give excerpts of "A Thousand Clowns." International dances are scheduled for 3 o'clock. The fashion show of avant garde costumes and hair styles, a co-educational pageant, will be staged at 3:30 in the court garden of Dickens square.

Among the artists and craftsmen of the community exhibiting and demonstrating at the fair will be the weaver and painter, Madge Friedman [Mrs. John Alschuler]; Phil Rowe, sculptor in metal; Lera Colver, jewelry designer; Ruth Philpon, showing both etchings and paintings, and Jack Getty, showing poster art.

Week-end whirl

Palms swaying to songs of the islands, guests in glamorized muu muus and flowered shirts, Tia Molakai and her Polynesian dancers, suckling pig and tropical fruits, exotic blossoms—together they spell tonight's luau in a rooftop Little Hawaii at the Lake Shore club.

Knee deep in the good old summer time: the Chicago Legal Secretaries association, headed for a Boots and Bronc bash tomorrow on John and Verna Shry's Skokie rancho, and the Credit Woman's club, off today to relax, lunch, and enjoy a musical comedy at the Nordic Hills Country club.

Friends of Lutheran General hospital attending Gala '69 tonight in the Marriott Motor hotel can expect triple-pleasure returns on their 30-dollar contributions. The sponsoring medical staff, Service league, and men's association have arranged an evening of dining, entertainment, and dancing to Frankie Master's music for their guests.

Women on the Go

antique collector, a fire department snorkel to cool off the moppets with a mass shower bath, folk dancers and singers, the Children's Traveling circus from the Lincoln Park zoo, and a garden showing of apparel favored by the now generation.

The neighbors are taking over this year for Carl Baum at his Bratwurst and Beer garden in Dickens square, while the chef of Allerton House is savoring sausage and sauerkraut in their native habitat during a vacation in Europe. Mr. Baum's associates at the Allerton, tho, are cooking the sauerkraut for the stand at the fair.

We received a welcome bulletin from the committee saying that Pat Seeley, executive director of the L. C. A., has found his misplaced Mexican recipe and aficionados will have their customary treat of delicious tacos.

Ella Jenkins will entertain the children with folk songs at 1 o'clock both days, but the circus from Lincoln park will perform today only between noon and 4 o'clock. There will be a continuous showing of old time movies. The Carl
